IF YOU ARE SICK

And Need Medicine for Your Kidneys, Liver, Bladder or Blood, Get the Best.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy

If you are suffering from kidney or bladder disease, the doctor asks: "Do you desire to urinate often, and are you compelled to get up frequently during the night? Does your back pain you? Does your urine stain linen? Is there a scalding pain in passing it, and is it difficult to hold the urine back? If so, your kidneys or bladder are diseased."

Try putting some of your urine in a glass tumbler, let it stand twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment, or a cloudy, milky appearance, your kidneys are sick.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will surely relieve and cure the most distressing cases of these dread diseases, and no physician can prescribe a medicine that cures it for kidney, liver, bladder and blood diseases, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation.

Walter D. Miller, of Delhi, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for years with kidney trouble and severe pains in my back, at times it was so bad I could hardly walk. My stomach also troubled me and I frequently had twinges of rheumatism. I suffered a great deal and received no benefit until I began the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. After taking it a short while it cured me."

All druggists sell Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Who Is My Neighbor?

Written for the Advertiser.

Who is my neighbor? Not he who hears my moan Nor passes on the other side Leaving me alone.

Who is my neighbor? Not he who sees me suffer, And says my need is passed me by, Though he may live next door.

Who is my neighbor? Who tries to steal my peace of mind And my good name among.

Who is my neighbor? Who comes with loving deed, Or speaks some word to light my soul, And thus he saves my life.

Who is my neighbor? Who shows me how to pray By his own true humanity, Tho' he be miles away.

Who is my neighbor? Tenderly my wounds he bind, Listens with tears to every woe, And leaves me peace of mind, He is my neighbor.

When Daddy Plays.

When quiet settles o'er the house, An' 'nights takes place, an' day, An' all us is hushed an' fed, An' the supper is served away, An' then daddy takes his fiddle out, An' then the G string with the D, An' then begins to play.

He plays a reel or jig or two To get his fingers free, To take the kids out left by work, An' then he puts in longer strokes, An' then he breaks the strain, An' plays on three strings at a time, An' sometimes hits the four.

He cuts in deep upon the bass, An' then he strums the fiddle, An' then he plays a jig or two, An' then he plays a reel or two, An' then he plays a jig or two, An' then he plays a reel or two.

States, the very same school books being used. But the curriculum of the schoolhouses are vastly different.

There are great mountains all around, and near the schoolhouse door may be a coffee plantation, with its rows of trees about eight feet high, covered with white flowers or little red berries, or perhaps prickly leaves, or a grove of banana trees with the fruit hanging in great bunches upon them.

Hawaiian children have their football and baseball teams, just as the children in the States do, but those of native blood have other sports peculiar to themselves. Chief among these is surfing. A Hawaiian child is perfectly at home in the water and will swim like a duck. There are few harbors in the islands. The long swell of the Pacific comes thundering in upon beaches miles and miles in length, the great waves changing into breakers as they near the shore.

Hawaiian boys will get into the canoe, two working together, and the canoe will be pulled out beyond the line of breakers. Then, turning the stern of the boat toward the sea, the steerer will watch until he sees a particularly big wave approaching, when he will cry out, "Ho!" which means "Paddle!" and the strong young arms will send the canoe shooting ahead at a rapid rate toward the beach.

It must travel fast or the incoming wave will swamp it. The boys will be seen leaving its opponents to swim to the beach as best they can. But if the canoe is carefully steered and the boys work their paddles quickly enough, the wave will pick it up gently and send it dashing to the beach on an even keel. From the time the wave picks up the canoe it is like coasting down a hill of water, as the boat flies down the foaming declivity to the shining sandy beach. In older times the boys used to bring this about many things can be done. First, as many English sparrows as possible should be killed and the bird houses in the limits of the city in which they breed should be removed. This will give an opportunity to our more desirable insect-eating birds of nesting along our streets. Second, and more important, put an end to the numberless cats, homeless and friendless, that infest every street, lane and alley in our city, which destroy a large proportion of the unfledged young of the birds; and then feed the cats which have good homes until they will not desire another course to their meals. Third, curb the desires of the youth to form collections of eggs and skins, thereby doing away with a great source of destruction.

Other ways may suggest themselves to the thoughtful person, like refraining from frightening birds away from trees, overcoming the curiosity felt by many to examine every nest to see what it contains, etc., etc.

By these means a permanent increase in our bird life will be assured and a permanent decrease in our insect and mud pests. That such an end is desirable we all realize, and since the only successful foe to these pests is our feathered friends we ought to use all means to insure their permanent and increasing presence.

Bad Effect on Deer of High-powered Rifles Bothers the Hunters a Good Deal—Many Deer Get Away After Being Hit—Found, Later Dead—Work of the Warriors—Big Record for Birds.

(Edited by O. Warren Brown.)

Sportsmen who use small-calibre rifles in the woods find this fall as they have found in the past that the effect of the high-powered projectiles upon deer is tearing to the extreme. A 30-calibre bullet makes a hole at entrance not larger than a lead pencil; so small in fact that the skin closing over it prevents hemorrhage almost entirely, but at the point of exit there is apt to be a cavity which looks as if some giant hook had gouged out the flesh. Furthermore, the tissues through which the bullet passes are so torn or injured that the flesh for a considerable distance around is not eatable.

In a hotel not far from Norway is a photograph of a doe shot last season by Hugh Boyd. The animal was struck through the middle by a 30 calibre bullet, was knocked down, got up and went on. The distance at the first shot was about 75 yards. When the doe was 100 yards away and going fast, Boyd fired again, striking her through the neck, telling her, but missing the bone. The doe staggered to her feet and kept on.

The third and last shot was fired at a distance of 125 yards, when the animal in bewilderment and fright had wheeled and started back toward the hunter. This bullet entered just in front of the left flank, ranged back and up, and emerged near the tail. Then the doe went down for the last time and was dead when reached.

She was a large and powerful animal, in prime condition, but any one of the two shots ought to have stopped an elephant. The first bullet, passing through the body, had shattered three of the ribs on the far side and made a hole at exit as large round as a silver dollar. This wound would undoubtedly have caused death in an hour.

The shot through the neck was trifling, but the last one had ripped into the tissues near the flank, had pulverized two of the rear vertebrae and passing out had gnawed a hole as large around as the crown of a child's hat. More than two large doubled fists could be thrust into the cavity and more than a pound of flesh had been torn away in the exit of the bullet driven by smokeless powder. For three inches around that part of the deer was ruined for table use.

It has been found, too, that the small calibers, while they eventually cause death and mangle the animal, lack the shocking capacity to stop it in its tracks. Since they came into general use five deer are hit and run away into the woods to die where one was lost before. There are many instances in which deer going at full speed down a runway are shot six or seven times with lead pencil bullets only to keep on as if untouched and to die within a day or so. It is to be said for the old-fashioned black powder .44, .45 and .50 calibers that when one of their bullets struck a deer the animal generally stopped as if hit by lightning; even if mortally hurt at first fire it was knocked down and so showed that it was easy for the marksman to put in a finishing shot.

The arrest and conviction before the Norway municipal court last week of two Albany men for violation of the game laws makes a total of 15 arrests and 11 convictions secured by Game Warden Albert P. Bassett during the last two years. Not all the arrests but the majority of them have been made in this county, and with two other game wardens in this section seems to show that there is still plenty of work for those who are vested with the authority to see that the statutes affording protection to game animals and fish is enforced. There has been an aggregate of $159.96 paid out as fines and costs by those who have been arrested for taking game in close time making it an unprofitable business to carry on. There is no question but what a good deal of illegal shooting and fishing is done within the borders of Oxford county, but the number of wardens is insufficient to cope with it.

In the eastern part of the State nearly every town located in the hunting section has a game warden who spends the greater part of his time seeing that the laws are not violated, yet few arrests are made. But there are now enough game wardens in Oxford county who keep busy enough to make a man a little timid of going in the woods for deer when the law forbids it. There is but little dogging of deer in this section, but the officers do not hesitate to say that frequently deer are chased through the woods by dogs who are without their owners, and that most of the killing of deer is done by farmers who are pestered to death by deer eating their crops. It seems to be a duty which the members of the next legislature have before them to enact a law that will not only protect the deer but the farmer, and consider that important question before they take up the matter of taxing sportsmen who come to Maine for a few days' hunting.

No one over in Rumford Center ever was guilty of saying that Charles Farrum of that borough was near-sighted or cross-eyed, or even thought of such a thing until the other day. Last Friday, a neighbor told Charles that he had that day seen a large deer in his pasture, opposite to where a lot of cattle were quietly feeding. Now Charles has the name of being one of the best of hunters on the Androscoggin, especially among his local brethren. After hearing about the deer, he took his rifle and went to the pasture and was not long in sighting his deer. He fired twice as quickly as possible, still the animal never moved a muscle. He was thunderstruck and amazed at the performance, but he fired again, and this time the creature bit the dust. He ran out to his game and was certainly amazed to find that he had shot off a horn—close to the head of a valuable heifer belonging to his neighbor. He began to look around and soon discovered a steer walking very lame, and on examination found that one of his bullets had struck the steer in the knee, shattering the bones badly. These two cattle were located several rods apart and in opposite direction. The people over in Rumford Center way are talking it now that Charles's rifle got the advantage of him, or else his "eyes are out on the bias."

Without doubt A. L. Cook of Norway is champion bird killer of this section. During the bird killing season just closed he has taken 107 woodcock and 41 partridges over his dog Sport, a pointer of fine breeding and five years of age. Cook has not devoted all his time to hunting, taking trips into the bush but two days a week since the law went off in September. The dog has been in the woods four seasons, during which his owner has brought down 481 birds of the two varieties named. This year's work is the biggest of the four as far as numbers are concerned and it is a record that but few if any hunters can equal.

Walter Chapman, J. W. Nash, Walter Riggs and Charles Reed alighted from the morning train from Bangor in high spirits over their successful hunting trip up the line. They left home Saturday night last, and went direct to Cupsuptic. They tramped some fifteen miles through the woods and put up at Charles Reed's camp, No. 4. On the second day out they each shot a deer, their average weight being about 150 pounds. After that the leaves became dry and it was impossible to approach the game, which was plentiful in every direction. It is seldom that hunters penetrate into the interior as far as the venturesome quartet did, but they enjoyed their experience mightily.

Samuel Marston shot a deer in Andover this week. Amos McKen of North Lovell shot a deer last Friday. James Clifford and George Grover, both living in Andover, each shot a deer this week.

Mell Sampson arrived home from Camp Medford, Saturday night, after spending three profitable weeks at his lodge. The fall flight of geese commenced last Wednesday, and they were all out of this zone by Saturday noon. More than 800 rested on the shores of the lake, Friday night, but none of the hunters got after them.

Last week, while out hunting, Charles Packard of South Waterford shot at a large buck. He wounded him, but did not bring him down. Mr. Packard followed him a short distance, but the deer managed to escape. Harris Kneeland of South Waterford "kissed the cat" among the hunters. Last Saturday he heard his dog barking on his premises back of the house, and on looking after the matter he saw a fox. Mr. Kneeland threw a stone at the fox, hitting him on the head and killing him at once.

As Ward Perkins was going to his home last Friday night, a deer took possession of the middle of the road in Andover and disputed the right of way with that gentleman. Mr. Perkins played for some time, and finally was obliged to dismount from his bicycle and drive the deer from the road.

Henry Porter of Andover was returning from Houghton to Andover last week, when he caught sight of a deer in the road near George Easton's in Byron. Porter got out of his carriage and taking hold of his horse's head with one hand fired two shots with the other from his revolver, and brought the deer down. (Continued on page five.)

Wireless Telegraphy.

The wonderful experiments in wireless telegraphy as demonstrated for the first time by exchanging signals from a railway station to a train running at a rate of sixty miles an hour, made on the Grand Trunk special train, Oct. 13, 1902, first fire it was the American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents to their forty-second annual convention held at Portland, Oct. 14th and 15th, has prompted the Passenger Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System to issue a publication giving a description of the experiments, together with a concise, popular treatise on the principles of wireless telegraphy, dealing with the subject also from an historical point of view and including a chapter on the recent developments of this branch of physical science. This article is from the pen of Howard T. Barnes, D. Sc., F. R. S. C., of the Macdonald Physical Laboratory of McGill University, Montreal, and is most opportune in view of the great interest occasioned by the recent arrival at Glace Bay, Cape Breton, of Signor Marconi, on an Italian warship, with the object of perfecting his plans for wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic Ocean. In distinction to the article on this subject, a description of the luxurious Grand Trunk special train on which the experiments were made, and a short resume of the trip from Chicago to Portland is given in an interesting manner. Copies of this valuable publication have been mailed to the principal officials of the great railway systems of the world, and any one desiring a copy can secure one by sending a two-cent stamp to G. T. Ry., General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal.

THE NEW YORK WORLD, THIRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read Wherever the English Language Is Spoken.

The Thrice-A-Week World was a brilliant success in the beginning and has been steadily growing ever since. Time is the test of all things, and has set its seal of approval on the Thrice-A-Week World, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory in the Union, and wherever there are people who can read our mother tongue.

This paper for the coming winter and the year 1903, will make its news service, if possible, more extensive than ever. All events of importance, no matter where they happen, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber, for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and more news and general reading than most great dailies can furnish at five or six times the price.

The Thrice-A-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political campaigns.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-A-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-A-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 186 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Norway Advertiser together for only $2.20.

Man's Inhumanity.

An Oxford County Man Writes of Selfishness and Greed—The Facts That Exist and What He Thinks of Them.

Every day's report of wrong committed by avaricious man against his fellow-man goes far to convince us that there is nothing but stringent laws, strictly enforced, that can be relied upon to give protection to the deserving poor. Not but there are now and then persons who are actuated by unselfish motives, but all the way along can be observed that where the mighty dollar is prospective the majority are ready to rise to the occasion. It is notoriously so in the liquor traffic and is potent to all. What care the liquor dealers for the sorrow and grief of thousands for all manner of crimes and neglect caused by the traffic? What care the wealthy men or corporations for the toiler who lives in a shack, when it takes every cent he can earn for a mere existence? Look at the poor miner who works in the dark caverns of the earth, in the mine and shams, for a mere pittance, and then to inform him that if he is not suited he is at liberty to go. Go where? This is all he knows. If he is able to go he may strike a worse combination or perhaps black-listed. Then he is relegated to the forlorn situation of joining the starving hoard and waiting to take some striker's place.

Then farther down the line when the cry of distress was going up from the poor, nearly all the dollars in fuel saw the expansion of dollars before them and they go on prices until they were actually prohibitive. Here and there be it said that the milk of human kindness could be observed where men would combine to alleviate the sufferings of the poor, but these were merely exceptions to the rule.

Look at the flurry in the wood market and the impetus it gave to advance away back in the highways and byways of the country. Thus it is in all matters of commerce. The beef combine sent up the price, making it nearly impossible for the poor man to furnish his table with its usual provision, and to-day in the shops (some of them at least) from two to four cents per pound more than ten or fifteen years ago when the same grade of beef is bought lower by the carcass than it was then.

Why is it thus? Is it not of men's inordinate desire to become rich at the expense of the toilers of the land?

Is it any wonder that one man arose to remark that the country would be better and the people enjoy greater happiness if there was no dollar in money in the country? It would doubtless be inconvenient for a time but it is not the great volume of money so unequally distributed which is causing so great an unrest, and has not this been the case with all nations which have gone to the wall?

Is it not strange that men seeking to control the destinies of this nation by the power of concentrated wealth, for the sake of becoming immensely rich individually, will not learn they are dividing the wealth of the people as in French and other revolutions?

Good beefsteak across the line in Canada at 8 cts. per pound shut out by a prohibitive tariff. "But the tariff does not affect us?" It seems there is growl or behind the throne that can annul a tariff on coal. Why not on other products?

We hoped when the slaves were set free that slavery would cease. We have hoped that we might live to see liquor banished. We have also hoped to see a measure of equality or a see legislation tend in that direction but our hope is vain.

A Lesson in Anatomy. How many bones in the human face? Fourteen, when they're all in place. How many bones in the human hand? Eight, my child, as I've often said. How many bones in the human spine? Twenty-four ribs and two of the rest. How many bones in the shoulders blade? Two in each—one before, one behind. How many bones in the human wrist? Four in each, and they help to bear. How many bones in the human hip? Two in each arm—two in each forearm. How many bones in the human wrist? Four in each, and they help to bear. How many bones in the palm of the hand? Five in each, with many a band. How many bones in the human fingers ten? Twenty-eight, and by joints they bend. How many bones in the human knee? One in each, like a dish they dip. How many bones in the human thigh? One in each, and they help to bear. How many bones in the human knee? One in each, like a dish they dip. How many bones in the human foot? Seven in each, and they help to bear. How many bones in the ball of the foot? Five in each, and they help to bear. How many bones in the toes, half a score? Twenty-eight, and there are no more.

Fierce Animals.

"Now, then, children," said the teacher, who had been commenting upon polar expeditions, "who can tell what fierce animals inhabit the regions of the north pole?" "Pole cats," shouted the boy at the foot of the class.

A Large Family.

A school teacher visiting in a nearby city was a guest at a party the other day, and he was to be introduced to a "Miss" and, supposing she was married asked: "How many children did you say you have?" Well, only forty now," was the reply that nearly staggered the questioner.

A Young Mathematician.

A Norway boy walked up to a business man on the street the other day and handed him some candy. "I wish to dispose of this piece of candy. I have five pieces and I wish to divide it equally with my sister at home." "Oh, I see," said the man, "you want to give me the odd piece to you, and your sister will have two pieces each. I should never thought of giving it away to do that," said the man as he calmly put the candy in his mouth.

Calvin Kneeland stayed over night recently with his brother on his way to Bemis. He was looking quite thin after his sickness of typhoid fever but was on his way back to work again.

SOUTH CONWAY, N. H.

L. D. Mills and wife have lately been to Freedom to visit friends.

Mr. Ivy has closed his summer residence in this place and returned to the city.

Walter Burrell and the Hon. J. Nash and son, Edgar, Mr. Craig, of Center Conway were in the place on Sunday.

Ephraim Bryant has bought a place on the road leading from Center Conway to Fryeburg. Jacob Bean used to own it.

John Legere butchered a hog that weighed when dressed 463 pounds. He changed steers with Cyrus Thurston of Eaton for a larger pair.

A number from here attended the auction of Mrs. Dr. Watson of Conway, lately deceased, consisting of household furniture and clothing.

Mr. Allen and his wife of Conway were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown. Also Jessie Hatch of Eaton spent Sunday in the place, the guest of Mr. Wakefield's family.

L. D. Mills has taken his mother's remains up and buried them in Center Conway in the lot with Mr. Bryant's family that he had removed there lately. The first Mrs. Bryant was Mrs. Mill's daughter.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Death Caused by Strangulation.
Strangulation caused by swallowing a plate of false teeth and superinduced by heart failure was the cause of death of Alvah Burnside Long, which took place in Lewiston, last week, and is briefly mentioned in these columns. He had been in the city for several days and being taken ill from continued drinking applied to the city physician for treatment. Hyperdermic injections were given him and he was left in the lodging room of the Lewiston city hall.

Later he was discovered sitting upright in a chair, and dead. The body was still warm and two physicians attempted to revive him by means of artificial respiration. They found a plate of six teeth wedged closely in his throat, and which they were unable to remove.

The body was brought to Norway and the funeral held from the home of his sister on Main street, Saturday afternoon, Nov. 16. E. Angell officiating. There were many floral pieces from friends.

Last Log House Gone.

The last log house in the town of Norway is being razed to the ground and the last vestige of a sign of pioneer times in this section is passing with it. For years the house, situated on the Witt farm, has attracted the attention of visitors to Norway.

It was a structure about 20x30, made of logs hewn with an adz, the ends being closely dovetailed together. Of late years it has been used as a storehouse, but it was built originally for dwelling purposes. Some time ago Wm. Stone purchased the Witt farm, and a few days ago commenced the demolition of the log house. The work will be finished this week.

Walter Morgan is in Mechanic Falls for the present.

L. I. Gilbert has been confined to the house the past week.

Herriek C. Davis has been reappointed judge of Norway Municipal Court.

Emma Smith is in Boston and has not returned to her home here as was reported last week. It is not known when she will return, though her health is much improved.

Wm. F. Jones, Kenneth and Robert Gurney have returned from Camp Deerfield. They were there three or four days, and not for the shooting season as stated last week.

Hon. Frederick E. Boothby, who for two years has been mayor of Portland, and whose administration has been successful in every way, has been given the nomination as the Republican candidate for the third term. The mayor was a Norway boy.

The board of health thought best to close the Norway village schools this week, because of scarlet fever. There are only a few cases and these are not severe. The schools had only one week before vacation and it was decided to take every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease and close the schools one week earlier than was planned.

Friday the bills were posted for Ravel's Humpty Dumpty, which is to be at Norway Opera House, Thursday, Nov. 20th. It is a show planned to be funny and is said by those who have seen it to be a brilliant piece of nonsense. There are a large number of strong acts in vaudeville, while the pantomime is intensely funny.

Norway Municipal Court.

Saturday morning a man from Oxford appeared before his Honor for cruelty to animals in beating and over driving a horse. The evidence did not substantiate the charge.

Fair and Ball of Rebekahs.

The members of Mt. Hope Rebekah Lodge are spending much time these days getting things in shape for their fair and ball to be held Dec. 3 and 4. The fair will be held in Concert Hall, at which place there will be a big lot of fancy goods, candy, articles for Christmas, aprons, a coal mine, fortune tellers, children's table and doll table, the latter presided over by the young folks, and all will have useful goods for sale. A supper will be served at 6.30 for 15 cents per plate.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 4, the calico ball will take place in Norway Opera House and Stearns' orchestra will furnish the music. C. S. Akers will be floor director and have as assistants Dr. B. F. Bradbury and H. J. Bangs. All the gallery seats will be 15 cents and reserved, while the floor tickets will be 50 cts. per couple. The Rebekahs are not particular whether you wear calico or not, as long as you attend the ball.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Schools Closed.

Schools about here are finished with the exception of Blackston school, which will continue a few weeks longer. On account of sickness the school was postponed a few weeks prior, necessitating the continuance.

There were last day exercises at the close of school at Muttiny Corner. At the close of the exercises all accepted a nice treat of pop corn and confectionery kindly provided by the teacher.

We got a light fall of snow and hail, last week.

J. R. Hall has gone to Westbrook for the winter.

We are having some fine weather now, sort of Indian summer.

Will Green has charge of the evaporating apple and cider business.

Hugh Smart and family have moved on their farm at Muttiny Corner.

The theatrical company gave their entertainments at Masonic building, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights last week. Good attendance and a pronounced success.

Norway's Shoe Business.

Looks Brighter Than for Years—The Most Demand for the Radcliffe Shoe Most Encouraging.

More cutters are at work in the shoe factory than ever before at one time in Norway, and still the Radcliffe Shoe Co. cannot keep up with their orders, and they are waiting more help in many of the departments. The Radcliffe shoe is being extensively advertised. It is a fine shoe, stylish and well made and is attracting the attention of people all over the world. The company have a good thing in the shoe line. They are telling of it. You will see the Radcliffe advertisement in the leading magazines and papers. It has taken thousands of dollars to do it, but the people have seen and heard of the shoe and they want to own a pair. Before they own a pair they must be able to see it. The company must supply the demand. This means more work and this is why the company wants more help.

People know a good thing when they see it. They want the Radcliffe shoe, and they want it once. The company want them to have the shoes. It is what they have been working and studying for years—to get up a shoe that the people demand. A shoe that will be an honor to the town in which it is made.

To make a first-class shoe requires skilled workmen. Skilled labor is an honor to any place and if Norway can make all the Radcliffe shoes and keep up the Radcliffe shoe standard it looks as though the old town had bright days in the future.

It was said in the ADVERTISER a week or two ago that if Norway wanted anything and wanted it bad enough they would have it. If they want a prosperity such as they never dreamed of now is the time for them to have it. At no time has the average number of hands employed exceeded the number employed at this time, and the scale of wages is much higher.

A Beautiful Memorial Fountain.

Fryeburg, Nov. 18.

EDITOR ADVERTISER:—There has recently been erected in this village a memorial fountain which is worthy of the early citizen of the town and his revered granddaughter whose memory is memorialized, worthy of the filial son whose love and abiding affection has reared it, and of the old town which joins the son in preserving and handing down the memory of John Stevens and his granddaughter, Meribeth (Charles) Pierce, born in Fryeburg, Dec. 1, 1798, who was one of the earliest settlers of the Seven Lots, (a name the village long went by); she was the daughter of Maj. James and Sarah (Stevens) Charles, representing two of the old first families of Fryeburg whose names have long been associated with the men and women of worth in this burrough. John Stevens, Nathaniel Merrill and Limbo, a colored man, were the first three men to pass a winter in Fryeburg.

We are indebted to the son, and the grandsons of the above, the late Pierce of San Francisco, (born in Steep Falls village, Sept. 4, 1871), for erecting this beautiful memorial in our fair village. Mr. Pierce went to California with the Argonauts of '49, and by his enterprise and business talent has acquired a fortune. His father was Wm. Pierce and for many years kept the old Pierce Tavern in Steadfield.

"He who makes what is useful, agreeable," said a Roman of Literature, "wins every vote," and certainly Mr. Pierce has placed on that central spot of our village, the south side of Main, at the head of Portland street, an object of interest and beauty no less than the greatest use to man and beast, a fountain that will dispense the clear, sparkling waters which come direct from the New Hampshire mountains.

Nov. 5, a great crowd gathered around the fountain to witness turning on the water.

"Welcome, thrice welcome is thy silvery gleam, Thon long imprisoned stream! Welcome the finkle of thy crystal beads As plashing raindrops to the drowsy meads. As summer's breath to Fryeburg's whispering reeds. From rock-walled channels, drowned in rayless night, Leap forth to life and light; Wake from the darkness of thy troubled dream And greet with answering smile the morning's beam."

The memorial is made of the white Hallowell granite, resting upon a base 7 to 8 feet square and ten feet thick. On this base rests four large pieces of granite, three for bowls for water, and one with faucet and cup for the people. On its south side next to the sidewalk, above this is a bronze tablet bearing this inscription:

In Memory of JOHN STEVENS, An early settler in this town, Who spent the winter here in 1792-93. Erected by his great grandson, Henry Pierce

By way of adornment on each of the other three sides is attached a bronze lion's head. On the four fountain pieces, resting on the base, the whole, including the base, rising to a height of 18 feet, the cap stone tapering on four sides to a sharp pinnacle.

While the design of the memorial is not showy or ornate, but simple and unobtrusive, it is sufficient beauty in its severe, classic style to attract and hold the artistic eye; and it seems to have the enduring form of the monuments of old, which were made to last through the great sons of time.

The town will remove the flag-staffs, the electric light poles and the old unsightly stone guide-post which has stood in the corner from time immemorial, so that the memorial will command a clear and unobstructed view from all points of the compass.

The citizens of the town feel most grateful to Mr. Pierce for this substantial gift in memory of an honored ancestor and mother, and his memory together with that of his great grandfather, and mother will ever be kept green by the people; and as long as this object of classic architecture shall stand on our beautiful Main street, the eye will look upon it with pleasure, and the hearts of all will glow with gratitude to the generous giver of this appropriate memorial.

The residents of Fryeburg are not less interested in the structure than the whole generosity and filial devotion took this form to enshrine the services and hardships of a distinguished pioneer and the virtues and memory of a beloved mother. They observe with satisfaction and pride that he has made this benefit to the town which for all is hallowed by excellent associations, and for very many like this mother, who have gone out from us, it is endeared by delightful memories. They sympathize with the motive and feeling that prompted him to offer this gift.

Let us hope that the example of Mr. Pierce will soon be followed by others, and that the great names associated with Fryeburg, the memorable events of its history, the old spots and the spots sacred to valor and patriotism shall be honored, endowed and marked by suitable monuments and memorials.

The architect of this fine piece of work was Frederick A. Thompson of Portland and the work done by Hawkes Brothers of the same city. The whole structure weighs 25 to 30 tons, the cost being nearly $2000. A. F. L.

In November Woods.

Delights That Await on Their Sunny Borders.

"It was a staccato day, this fair November. Everything was sparkling, air, sand, water, sky. Even the sounds were crisp and clear. The dry leaves crackled and snapped, the wind played over the cornstalks with the dancing measures of castanets, while every reed and stalk of marsh grass, wild rice and the old dog in the sandy fields rustled in different keys. The bird was too, they were all staccato. The nutcracker's sharp quack, the blue jay's call, the yellow hammer's wick-wick-wick and the cry of the circling red-tailed hawk—no, not in the air, but in the stillness of the field from which the buckwheat had been taken rose a sweet legato song, clear, if a trifle thin."

"Spring-o-the-year, Spring-o-the-year," called one voice to another, and a flock of meadow larks arose and flew over us. "What delicate birds!" gasped Flower Hat, as she struggled to face the wind and force it to blow back the locks of hair that were blinding her.

"Not deceitful—hopeful or reminiscent, either you please," I answered. "No more deceitful than Indian summer itself that spreads a golden haze over the season's raggedness and gives to November a day like this which, save for the swift twilight and late dawns, might be April. The lark notes are the music to the final scene of the masque of the season of blossoms. The Magician has given the landscape its last flower, which sometimes does not fade before he washes the colors from his palette with newly fallen snow."

"Flower Hat, still struggling with her hair, stopped and climbing a rail fence looked wildly about. 'Last flower landscape?' 'Where? Surely you don't mean those little wispy bits of goldenrod, and I'm positive that the frost of a week ago, though it was very light, has left nothing else in this low place. Oh, look at the line of milk-weeds with the pods pointing this way and that. The sun and wind are opening them, and you can see the silk puff out and sail away with the seeds hanging like ears of a tiny balloon, and Flower Hat picked a stalk and held it up. The brown seeds seen through the silk and fitted over one another like fish scales, but even as we looked the opening grew wider and the dried scales slipped apart, hanging a moment by the silk-like filaments, and in another second feather out and floated away to scatter the seed. 'How beautiful!' she added, 'and yet it is only common milkweed. And over yonder is a virgin's bower vine gone to seed, that, as the wind stirs it, looks like a wreath of leaf smoke puffing over the bushes and trees, and a few leaves and berries on the virginia creeper. But I do not see your last flower. Where and what is it?'"

"That would be telling a day's pleasure in one word," I replied. "I must answer as Time's finger does. 'Come and see!' and then take you to this last flower in its haunts."

"Before noon we turned from the hemlocks into the narrow road through the hollow. A thin fog and a long and road the various thistles showed belated pompons, and climbing bittersweet or wax-work looped its berry-laden branches over the walls, or else, fallen in a heap charitably covered a mass of dingy weeds with red mums and autumn mums. "In the strip of swamp that held the backwater of the river, and from which it was divided by a cove of gray-limbed maples, the cat-tail flags still held their batons, no longer stiff and brown but trayed and limp, above the beds of decaying leaves. Along the Hemlock road the banks were green with Christmas ferns, and red partridge berries revealed great mats of the inconspicuous little vines that were somewhat overgrown in the lower season, just as the brilliant overbriars of spice bush are far better known than its early blossoms."

"Look at the willows," cried Flower Hat, almost falling out of the chaise as she pointed to the river. "The water has coaxed them to bud, or else they misunderstood those delusive meadow larks. You sillies! In a few days, or perhaps to-night, you will be nipped in the bud and leaved by winter's breath, like the rest of us, that, no matter how it seems, it is not safe in New England to be without your flannels between October and May."

"Not willows; guess again," I said, guiding her to the road. "The hand of peculiar greenish yellow, in pigments called citrine, now followed the road on both sides and washed well up on to the hills. The hue suggested both willows and the flowers of spice bush, now showing the ripe berries, yet lacked the glow of spring color, being a sort of reflection, as moonlight to sunlight, though it filled the eye completely and drew it from the misty grayness of the leafless swamp maples. As we drove through a narrow place where the bushes came to the wheel-tracks, the same color suddenly appeared within grasp."

"You have come, seen the flower in the landscape, and here it is almost in the hand of the Magician. The hand of Flower Hat gazed at the mottled branch for which she had reached. The nuts of a past season were ripening side by side with the thread-like petals of the newly opened blossom that wrote its name, 'Witch Hazel!' she exclaimed. 'Who had dreamed that there was a place of it here, or that these spidery flowers could light up the whole landscape and take upon the bleakness from it! I've often had hopes of it, I tell you, but out here it is a wholly different thing. Why don't people come to see it as they go to hunt for arbutus or pussy-willows in spring? It's quite worth while.'"

"Because, I suppose, the outing motif is too often forsaken with other summer-day occupations, and so in autumn the flower in the hand is better known than the flower in the landscape. Very few people have any idea of what, if anything, awaits them on the border of the November woods."—"Flowers and Ferns in Their Haunts."

OTISFIELD.

Thirtieth Anniversary.

On Saturday evening, the 15th, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Dyer, to the number of about seventy-five, gathered to give them a surprise, the occasion being the 30th anniversary of their marriage. Though Mrs. Dyer knew something of the affair beforehand, it was a genuine surprise to Mr. Dyer, who had not an inkling till several guests had arrived. It was largely a Grange party, but several invited guests who were not Grangers. A literary program with vocal and instrumental music was well carried out, after which J. Henry Edwards, Master of Frederick Robie Grange, in behalf of the Grange, with a few very well chosen words presented Mr. Dyer with an elegant carving set. Other useful presents, including a suit of money, were received. Refreshments, consisting of bread and butter, cake and coffee, were then served, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Knights' orchestra being in attendance, a march was next in order, followed by "Seven in and Seven out," and "Tucker." A few dancers were present and the dining room was cleared and a dance of four numbers was stepped out. The hour then being late the company dispersed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dyer another thirty years of untroubled wedded life.

G. B. Turner saw five deer together at dusk on the 15th.

Mrs. J. E. Small has been confined to the house with a severe cold but is reported better.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Edwards entertained three tables at whist Tuesday evening. Mrs. Edwards left Thursday morning for Massachusetts where she will spend the winter.

EAST WATERFORD.

Mr. McGowan and family move to Berlin, N. H., this week.

Joseph B. Haskell is preparing to build a house in early spring.

Will Emery paid a flying visit from Randolph Falls, returning Monday.

Rolfe Bros. have fully replenished their stock of goods and are driving a brisk trade.

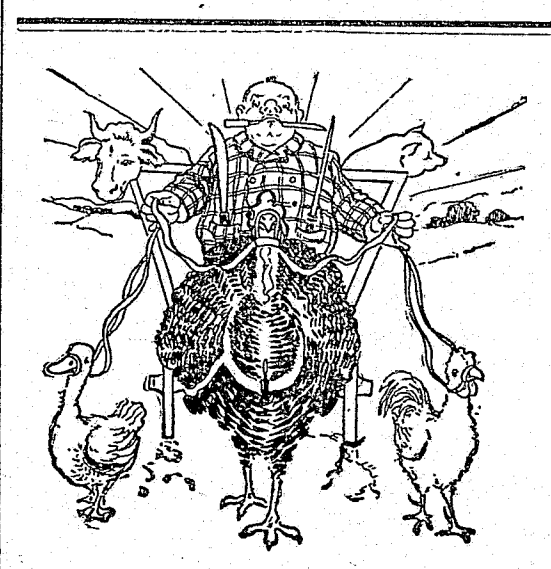

Adam Bellfountain has closed his labors in the dowl mill and will go to Nova Scotia for the winter.

Peter N. Haskell is still able to go out when pleasant, but subject to painful ill turns fraught with danger.

Work on the new steam mill near the Bean bridge is being pushed with vigor and will soon be in full operation. Mrs. Lyman Holmes is at the Maine General Hospital, being treated for a severe nervous affection of the face and neck.

George Stevens has sold his house on the plains to the Steam Mill Co., which might be moved to spot desired but for crossing the iron bridge.

Our fall term of school closed Friday, the 14th, after a continuance of ten weeks of profitable and pleasant work by Annie M. Young, this being her fifth successive term. Whole number of pupils 23; average attendance, 18. Hyacinth Gammon, Beatrice Gammon, Annie Hilton and Vernon Judkins were absent one-half day each; Maria Stanley and Clarence Hilton were present full time, except one tardy mark for Clarence.

PROVERBS

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works, and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hygienic ingredients especially prepared for the stomachs.

Children take to it because they like it, and the remedy takes naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory remedy.

We will send you the penny, A.C., a sample free.

Be sure that you get the genuine Scott's Emulsion.

A NATIONAL NEED.

Some Views of Peter J. Otey on Good Roads.

In an article on good roads, written shortly before his death for the New York News, the late Peter J. Otey, representative from Virginia, said:

"In my opinion the most important question before the American people today is that of good roads. Good roads, like all other good things, cost. Cheap articles are of inferior quality; hence our bad roads. If we are to have good roads, we must pay for them. To pay for them we must be taxed. Then, if taxed, how? By the federal or state government?"

"I am in favor of the whole system of roads in the country being placed under government construction, to be paid for out of the United States treasury, and, having introduced a bill looking to this end, I am overwhelmed with letters from all sections of the country approving it and inquiring about it. This bill provides for the direct appropriation of $100,000,000 to be expended in the forty-five states and four territories of the United States in proportion to population. It should become a continuing appropriation till good roads become a network over the land."

"Will anybody tell me why the United States government should not construct good roads in the various states and territories? Is there any difference in this applying public money and applying it to crooks, gamblers and rivers? Both are to expedite transportation, to help interstate and foreign commerce."

"The concentration of population and wealth in great cities would be largely overcome if the country districts should have their fair share of the appropriation of public money and the consequent improvement of the country roads that would follow."

THE GOOD ROAD TRAINS.

Results of the Lessons on Highway Building in the South.

In answer to an inquiry from The Railroad Gazette Vice President Harahan of the Illinois Central gives the observed results of the experimental trip through Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana of the good roads train sent out by that railroad company. There was less need of the lesson in Kentucky than in the other states, as the turnpike roads in the interior of Kentucky have been models for three-quarters of a century.

That state was the pioneer in the building of such roads. However, a Kentucky Good Roads association has been formed to improve roads in sections of the state where they are not up to the standard. Similar associations have been organized in Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, and in each of those states the legislatures will be asked to take steps furthering the good work.

The sentiment aroused wherever the experts on the train showed what could be done in good road construction with native and comparatively cheap material has spread, to remote parts of the states, and the movement looking toward an intelligent and consistent method of roadbuilding and road conservation has been well started.

A like good roads train is now touring the south Atlantic states, arousing interest everywhere and promising as good results as attended the demonstration in the Mississippi river states.

German Roads.

The Countess Alida von Krockow writes from Germany to The Christian Register: "Germans find that it pays to encourage peasants to free their fields of stones. The property rises in value—taxing value. The stones, thrown into heaps by the roadside, are purchased by the district road repairing commission. Poor men, who otherwise would have to be supported in almshouses, are hired to break these stones and then are trained to the work of repairing the roadbeds. The money to pay the men is made by auctioneering off to the highest bidder the crops of the fruit trees that were planted on both sides of the highway when it was built and that are nourished well by the manure that falls along the road and is pushed at intervals by a road tender upon their roots. The purchaser of the crop sees to it that his fruit is not stolen. The road commissioners have no bother about that, and, although the sale is by auction, it brings in considerable. Every burgher knows how much, because the sales of highway fruit crops are published in the local newspapers."

Wisconsin Good Roads Plans.

A good roads wave has struck Wisconsin, and the result of it will be the means of placing the state on an equality with any in the Union if only half of the work now being planned is carried to a successful issue, as it probably will be. Plans for a good road from Chicago to Milwaukee have been taken up. There is now a cycle path from Chicago to Waukegan and from Racine to Kenosha. From Milwaukee to South Milwaukee the road is in excellent condition. From this it can be seen that there are only short stretches which are in need of work. The extension of the Sheridan drive along the shore of Lake Michigan from Chicago to Milwaukee, a distance of eighty-five miles, is also contemplated.

New Roads in Massachusetts.

Much of the new road built in Massachusetts has cost about $5,500 a mile, though the average for the state, owing to the grades met in many sections, amounts to about $7,500. The material was macadam. Maintenance charges run about $100 a mile a year. The commission has succeeded in keeping its costs something under this level at which they began, and this has helped to win popular approval for the work. Concerning the benefits coming from it, the Massachusetts folk seem to be of one mind. Time saved in travel, less strain on horses and vehicles, economy of power in transit (this last often reaching 35 and even 50 per cent), cheaper and more expeditious access to markets and more trade and benefit from casual visitors or more or less permanent residents, attracted by the advantages of the roads, are among the advantages claimed, and apparently with justice, as the results of the commission's work.

Crystal Pavements.

Pavements of glass, having satisfactorily withstood the test of actual use in Zurich, Geneva, Lyons and other Swiss and French cities, are now to be tried in Paris on the Rue Trenchet, in the rear of the Madeleine. The material used for paving is not ordinary glass. It is prepared specially, and yet it is cheap, as it is made of old bottles and the like remelted. The glass is ground to powder, strongly heated until it assumes a pasty consistency and pressed into molds. The blocks and the durability of ordinary glass without its fragility.

FEED OF MILK COWS.

Recent Experiments—Light Versus Heavy Grain Rations.

The rations fed by dairymen the country over show very wide differences in the amount and character of grain used. To some extent these differences may be said to be normal, depending on the prices of grain and concentrated feeding stuffs, the capacity of common cows to utilize large rations profitably and the prices received for dairy products, but aside from these factors there are differences in practice which rest largely on the custom of the locality or a fallacious idea that economy in this respect is necessarily a feature of profitable management. Recognizing that this matter depends considerably upon local conditions, a few recent experiments may be helpful in determining the most economical and profitable policy.

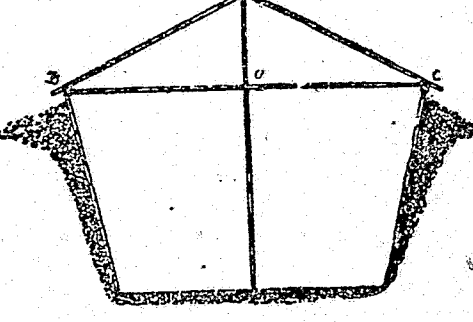

The New Jersey station has been for several years conducting some very practical experiments with its dairy herd, which is managed as a commercial herd rather than an experimental one and is used to produce milk for a milk route. In connection with these experiments the effect of so called "good" and "poor" rations has been tried. The good ration consisted of four pounds of wheat bran, four pounds of dried brewers' grains and two pounds of linseed meal with five pounds of timothy hay and 30 pounds of silage and had a nutritive ratio of about 1 to 5.3. The poor ration consisted of four pounds of cornmeal with eight pounds of timothy hay and 12 pounds of cornstalks and had a nutritive ratio of about 1 to 13.5. Rations similar in character to the poor ration are said to be quite common in many districts.

In a period of 30 days four cows produced on the good ration 2,701.7 pounds of milk and 131.04 pounds of butter, and in a similar period on the poor ration 2,014.2 pounds of milk and 94.82 pounds of butter. The good ration therefore gave 687.5 pounds more milk and 36.7 pounds more butter, equivalent to 34 per cent more milk and 39 per cent more butter on the ration containing the larger amount of grain. At local prices for feeding stuffs the cost of producing 100 pounds of milk and a pound of butter was practically the same for the two rations, but it is pointed out that 20 cows fed the good ration would produce as much milk and butter as 30 cows fed on the poor ration. It has been claimed that, other things being equal, a small herd well fed will prove more profitable than a large herd poorly fed, and the facts brought out by this study seem to emphasize the correctness of this claim and point to the importance of good feeding in the economical production of butter.

Experiments were also made in feeding different amounts of the grain making up the good ration. Ten, 15 and 20 pounds per head were fed to cows in full flow of milk. The indications were that while a healthy animal may consume large quantities of grain in the rate of increased yield is not in proportion to the increased amount of grain used after a certain point is passed. Rations containing more than 10 pounds of grain per day while they were profitable were less so than those containing this amount.—E. W. A.

Cellar For Roots.

A common and practical way building root cellars is shown in the illustration from Country Gentleman which says: This method of construction is commonly used in the great potato growing sections of the country. Excavate by means of a scraper and then set up the retaining walls. The upright pieces at the sides should be of 4" x 4" studs placed not more than four feet apart. The floor may be of plank or may be simply of earth. If no planks are used, the studding should have the lower end imbedded in the earth to prevent it from slipping. The sliding may be of inch boards and should be nailed to the studding before they are raised into position. The joists B O C should be of 2 by 4, and the supports for the roof should be of the same material. The space above the joists may be filled with straw or leaves or hay to prevent freezing in the cellar. The plates, which are secured at the top of the studding, may be placed somewhat above the level of the surface of the ground. Part of the earth which is removed in excavating should be banked up against the walls under the roof, so that the slope of the ground will be away from the cellar.

Doors may be placed at intervals in the roof, so that roots can be shoveled from a wagon directly into the cellar. At one end of the pit there should be solid double doors, so that entrance may be had to the cellar in cold weather without permitting the cold to enter. The upright centerpiece should not be more than six to six feet high, and the length of the cellar may be made as great as desired. The width may be from eight to ten feet. If this can be constructed on a slight slope of land, it will be all the better.

Come East, Young Man.

This may sound like a parody on the advice of Horace Greeley, but times have changed since his day, and now the portions of this great country of ours which offer greatest inducements and widest opportunities to young men are in the eastern portion, both north and south. During a trip to Minnesota and Wisconsin fifteen years ago the writer was convinced that if a man was to leave New England he would do better in the South than in the West, and evidences to strengthen that opinion have been constantly accumulating. The methods of skinning and soil-robbing by which so many have made money on the great farms and stock ranges were not self-supporting, and for real business in which the son can follow the father without the necessity of restoring fertility to the impoverished acres, people must fall back on the less pretentious methods of older portions of the country.

The "Boundless prairies of inexhaustible soil" have been bounded and cut up and, in too many cases, the soil exhausted and with not much beds to aid in restoration. The time is coming when the abandoned farms and uncultivated swamps and hillsides of New England will be the only open places for young men to get a hold upon only useful in holding the world together. The tide is turning, and the "effete East" is coming out into the sunshine of merited recognition.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.
Adopted by Evergreen Rebekah Lodge, No. 15, I. O. O. F., on the death of sister Bertha Brown.

Whereas the messenger of death, who claims his subjects from amongst the young as well as from the ranks of the aged, has again entered our lodges in the person of our sister and associate, Bertha Brown; and

Whereas, in view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our sister, and by the still heavier loss sustained by those nearest and dearest to her, therefore be it

Resolved, That by the death of sister Brown our lodge has lost a worthy member, a beloved sister and a true friend. While our hearts are deeply grieved we can but look through our tears to that bright future where parting is never more, and strive to copy the many admirable qualities of her life.

Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the family and other surviving relatives and friends of the deceased; and with them look to that Friend who alone can give comfort and consolation when earthly comforts fail.

Resolved, That we drape our charter for thirty days and that these resolutions be published in the Norway Advertiser, a copy sent to the family of our departed sister, and one inserted on the records of our lodge.

ETNA B. ROSE, Committee on Resolutions.

HARRISON.

Badly Afflicted.
Our little village is quite afflicted at the present writing. Jesse Russell, well known for many weeks, has not been so well for the past week. J. Emery Russell was caught under the wheels of a loaded rack several days ago, and has not been able to stand upon his foot since. The ligaments of his foot were torn. He suffers considerable pain. Ed Billings cut his foot very badly last week. He was brought home from South Andover, where the accident occurred, and the doctor was obliged to take 12 stitches to close the cut. He was at work for Orlando Russell, cutting poplar. Mrs. Stearns, an old lady who has made her home for several years with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Frost, is not expected to survive but a few days. She is nearly 98 years old. At that age life must be a very lonely thing.

Mistaken Identity.

Lyman Chute has lost a yearling steer. He found it Sunday morning near the pasture fence, dead with a bullet hole through its body. Evidently a case of mistaken identity.

Chan Frost from South Framingham, Mass., is visiting friends in town.

Helen Bartlett from East Bethel has been visiting at Eben Barker's.

The village school closes this week after a very successful term of 12 weeks.

John Bacon and Arthur Howe are hunting deer, making headquarters at "The Freak."

J. B. Roberts has opened very attractive undertaker's rooms in the chambers of his furniture ware-rooms.

Mr. Bassett of Norway was in town last week, gathering statistics of summer visitors, and incidentally looking after the campers and fishermen.

Mrs. Fulsome is visiting her sister, Mrs. William Russell. She will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Chan Frost, in Framingham, Mass.

Frank Russell has sixty-five chickens shut up in one pen, which he is fattening for market.

Elmer E. Howe is entertaining Dr. Solon Bartlett and two other friends, from Lowell, Mass., at the Klondike, the camp upon the mountain. They are on the hunt for deer.

Mrs. Susan Roberts has a very fine looking flock of geese. Two geese were hatched in the spring, and all have grown into geese. One so rarely sees these birds in these days that they attract much attention.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Roberts drove to Rumford Falls last Sunday to listen to the preaching of Rev. Sewall Pease of New York. Mr. Pease used to preach in Hanover and Rumford, and his old friends are delighted to welcome him again.

The ladies gave a supper in the hall, last Wednesday evening, which was well attended for the season.

Over fifty sat down at the table. The children amused themselves with games, while the older ones spent the time in conversation. The proceeds were devoted to improvements in the kitchen. A large shelf will materially aid in all future functions. Mrs. Viola Russell, Mrs. Eva Hayford and Mrs. Lennie Howe acted as hostesses. Another supper will be given the first of December for the benefit of the library.

Chanancy B. Ames of East Waterford spent Sunday at home.

E. L. Davis and wife, Mrs. A. F. Davis spent Saturday evening at Geo. Dyer's in Otisfield, the occasion being Mr. and Mrs. Dyer's 80th anniversary. A large number were present and spent a very pleasant evening.

DENMARK.

M. A. Proctor and wife of Jackson, N. H., were in town, last week two days, visiting Dr. Butler. They returned to Jackson, Friday.

Emma Bennett of Lynn, Mass., visited Mrs. Geo. Hill two days last week, and returned home, Friday.

Jared F. Berry has bought the farm of Chas. D. Jordan.

Eli Witham and Willard McKusick were down from Lovell, last Sunday.

Horace True has been two trips to Stoneham for apples for Frank Carpenter.

Chas. D. Jordan has moved to Harrison. The family went, Monday, the 17th.

Rev. Mr. Waterworth of Andover preached at the Congregational church, last Sabbath, and will preach next Sabbath also.

Chas. Pingree and Horace True have taken a job drawing lumber at East Stoneham and North Waterford and will commence as soon as snow comes.

Rev. C. C. Whidden preached, last Sabbath, at East Denmark and has closed his work for the present. Arrangements will be made for regular services each Sabbath at the spring annual conference, which meets at Bridgton in April.

NORTH PARIS.

Mabel Chase from South Paris is visiting in the place.

A. R. Tuell and wife are settled in the I. F. Littlehale rent.

Thomas Flavin has moved his family into the Pratt house at West Paris.

Presiding Elder Ladd preached at the M. E. church, Saturday night.

A good number attended the quarterly meeting at West Paris, Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie West from Jamaica Plain, Mass., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Annie Morse.

Leroy Abbott was at home over Sunday from Hebron, where he is attending school.

Sheriffs Tucker and Bird were in the place, Friday night. Saturday, they made several arrests for drunkenness.

Abner Benson, who has bought the Hillman place is getting a lane ready to plant in spring. Mr. Benson thinks he will be unable to get ready to move before another spring.

A large party from this place visited the M. E. parsonage, the 11th, it being Mr. Pummer's 85th birthday. All returned feeling that Rev. and Mrs. Rich know just how to happily entertain their friends.

Union meetings are being held by Rev. E. R. Rich and Rev. H. E. Brown. Last week they were held at the Methodist house, this week at the Baptist. Mrs. Brown sings beautiful solos at all of the meetings.

SNOW'S FALLS.

Launched a Great Enterprise.
At five o'clock Saturday evening, Nov. 15, Mrs. B. C. Mudge, wife of the inventor of the linen process to be worked here, pulled the wire and sounded the steam whistle, just before attached to the large steam boiler. She blew a long whistle and then imitated as well as she could the cry inaugurated by her children last summer while on their vacation from college, when on a picnic, and doubtless become familiar to many readers of the ADVERTISER; and lastly she gave the telephone call of one long note, two short notes, followed by one long one again. And when the nearly two score men had assembled for their pay, Treasurer Wood remarked: "When great ships are launched it is usual to select a beautiful lady to christen and wish them good speed. So Mrs. Mudge has launched the mechanical part of this great enterprise by blowing the whistle for the first time and wishing the company good speed, in which I trust you all join. And the time, pay time, is symbolic of the aim, desire and determination of the management to pay each and every one of the employees fairly and promptly, as soon as wages are earned, and to start the wheels of manufacture free of all debts." He then handed each one of the employees an envelope containing the full amount of wages due to this time, as he has done every Saturday evening before, since the company broke ground last August.

Clara Hazeltine of Sumner, who has been at home for a few days on account of a fever on her thumb, has returned to her work for Mrs. B. C. Mudge.

George Miller, representing the Philadelphia Drying Machine Co., and J. W. Shaugnessy, representing the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., both of Philadelphia, also George F. Jobert and Erick Finckh have been installing machinery in the Linen Fibre Co.'s mill since November 10.

ANDOVER.

Long Hidden Mysteries Revealed.
Cabot Lodge, Knights of Pythias, gave an entertainment on Friday evening, Nov. 14, when they gave "The Mystery Revealed," a complete expose of the mysterious rites and ceremonies of the Ancient Order of Heracles, including the grips, signs and secrets of the Lodge and the ceremony of initiation. Cast of characters as follows: Illustrated Grand Hancock, R. C. (Highly Illustrated Grand Hancock), (duke), Malcolm Gregg, L. O. W. (Laird of Vahalla), Owen Lovejoy, J. A. C. (Grand and Mighty Executioner), G. A. M. E. (Grand and Mighty Executioner), P. F. C. (Freeminent Prime Counsellor), C. O. C. (Custodian of Dispatches), P. P. C. (Pastmaster), Peter W. Learned, P. P. C. (Pastmaster), Wirt Lovejoy, A. M. (Assiduous Marshal), R. A. Grover, P. M. (Principal Master), James Poor, R. A. T. S. (Reliable and Trustworthy Sentinel), Pearl Small, Lewis Ripley.

The costumes were unique, the parts finely rendered in after the entertainment a supper was served of oysters, pastry and cake, after which was dancing for two hours, when all dispersed with the conclusion that for a first-class "send-off" Cabot Lodge cannot be surpassed.

OXFORD.

Irving-Wardwell.
A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Wm. L. Wardwell, Saturday evening, Nov. 8, the contract-party being their son, Floyd Wardwell, and Ada M. Irving. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and potted plants. The bride was becomingly gowned in pale blue with white silk and applique trimmings, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses, the gift of Mrs. Edward McDonald. During the pretty wedding ceremony the happy couple stood beneath a beautiful arch of ferns and flowers. Rev. A. A. Callaghan officiated. Only the family were present.

Following is a list of the wedding gifts: Watch and Shadash pin—Floyd Wardwell. Gravy ladle—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jones. Berry spoon—Leander Wardwell and family. Cold meat fork—Mrs. and Mrs. Edward McDonald. Tomato spoon—Mrs. L. M. Keith. Cold meat fork—Richard Page. Pepper and salt shakers—Annie Skillings. Faror lamp—Mrs. and Mrs. Edward McDonald. Sofa pillow (hand painted)—Mrs. Wm. L. Wardwell. Clock—Mr. and Mrs. James Irving. Cream pitcher and sugarbowl—Annie Fogg. Outmeal pitcher—Lucy Robinson and mother. Bedspread—Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Irving. Crayon picture—Mrs. E. McCollery. Rocker and rug—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Chadbourne.
